Byrd In Statement

This was undertaken by the State without increasing either the gasoline or license taxes.

"My purpose in this statement is to urge every taxpayer to take an active interest in local government and to ascertain for himself or herself, by attending the meetings of the boards of supervisors, that every possible reduction is being made in local taxes to reduce his tax bill payable this fall. The law requires that the boards of supervisors shall publish their budgets. It requires that before any tax can be increased, thirty days' notice by publication in a local newspaper shall be given, and the reason therefor. The law requires that the amount of county and district levies shall be fixed during the month of April. No time is to be lost.

BUCKINGHAM
Mrs. Sue B. Gills, of the 88th anniversary of her birth here recently when she entertained 108 guests in her home. A striking feature of the entertainment was the big birthday cake, in the center of the table, and there were three cakes that she made and baked herself. Among her relatives present were Medames Lelia Spencer, Frederick, of Florida, and Mary T. Garnett, of Farmville. Mrs. Frederick made the trip to be with her mother on this joyful occasion. Despite Mrs. Spencer's advanced age, she is still very alert and in business, and a delight for her friends to come and see her. Her home has long had such a home-like appearance and attraction for guests.

Mrs. Besie Baldwin and Fannie Haskins, of Curdsville, and Mrs. Eliza Mallory, of Henric county, were visitors here last Friday and visited the Haskins family, now owned by Mrs. W. T. Snoddy.

Miss Emma Glover, one of the Wood-burn farm owned by P. F. Glover, has 25 Ewes that have 35 lambs. Who can beat that?

The many friends of Bernadette, widow of Samuel, before her marriage Miss Eliza Hughes, she was 70 years old and is survived by one brother, William Hughes, of Buffalo Station and 2 daughters, Mrs. Cash, of West Virginia, and Mrs. Linnie Cullen, of Buffalo Station.

Buckingham, March 16.—Farmers here are most pleased that Buckingham has been the top in getting signatures to the Co-op contracts.

Although the amount was a small depositors are glad to testify in a case in the Circuit court on Tuesday.

There was an unusually large crowd in attendance on Tuesday, the opening day of circuit court, reminding old timers of the old county "Cote" day as regards numbers, but March court in the old days was the time the grooms would have their stallions out on exhibition, running them around in a ring, or up and down the road to show them off much to the delectation of the small boys, but now there is hardly room in the streets to park the cars.

Inspector Ferguson was here to testify in a case in the Circuit court on Tuesday.

Gets Two Years For Attempt To Break Into Jail

Many Throng Buckingham Court House To Hear Trials

Buckingham, March 23.—The case of Chapman Oliver was tried at last week's term of the court here and he drew a 2-year term in the pen. This negro was charged with an attempt to break into jail, which is something almost new in the annals of criminality. We often read of someone cutting on the inside looking at the outside, or trying to get out the outside, but seldom is it the case that anyone wants to get into "Durandville." Counsel for defense in this case is asking for the verdict of the jury to be set aside as contrary to the law and the evidence contained among other things that the breaking into a jail-house was not contemplated in the statute governing larceny, and that the thing which was charged with attempting to steal, had no commercial value, since the laws of the land have outlawed the sale of intoxicating drinks. However, Judge Hutchinson was of the opinion that the grounds without merit and promptly sentenced the prisoner in accordance with the verdict of the jury. Counsel for defense asking a stay of execution to allow time to apply for a writ of error in the case.

WILLIAMS SEEKING PLACE WITH COLTS
Popular Couple Are Wed In Farmville Sunday Afternoon

Miss Florence Helen Glenn, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Glenn, of here and Mrs. Martin, of Farmville, were married here last Sunday afternoon. Following his signing of a contract several weeks ago, he has been working out at Hampden, Sidney, under the tutelage of Coach Charlie Bernier.

This young star set a record last season with the Lynchburg "Cutters," by playing 18 games of errorless ball. His friends in this section wish him well in his professional debut.
